

WOODSTOCK, VIRGINIA.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1909.

THE ELECTION.

The result of the Election in Virginia is gratifying to the Democrats. It is a strong endorsement of the Democratic administration of the affairs of the state. The majority for Governor is estimated from 26,000 to 27,000. All the returns have not been received but enough to show that the Democrats carried the State by a large majority. Mr. Taft's effort to make Virginia the wedge to break the solid South was futile.

In Shenandoah the returns show that Ellyson, Democrat for Lieut. Governor received a majority of 3, while Kent, rep. for Governor had a majority of 95. Mr. Locke had a majority of 225. He polled 14 more votes than Mr. Kent the Republican candidate for Governor. Mr. Locke being from Woodstock received a number of complimentary votes, while his opponent evidently lost 126 votes by not having his name on the ticket.

Mr. Bowman, candidate for the House of Delegates received three more votes than Mr. Kent and Mr. Brumback received 62 more votes than Judge Mann.

Mr. Bowman having been twice elected to that office was well known in the county. Mr. Brumback's vote was very encouraging to a young man making his first race, and especially so, since it was known that he was bitterly opposed by some members of the anti-saloon league.

Judge Samuel W. Williams, candidate for Attorney General received more votes than any candidate on the Democratic ticket. Where Judge Williams is best known, he is most popular.

The result of the election for Secretary of State is creditable to the State Committee. The death of Mr. Eggleston, only a few days before the election, was embarrassing, but the State Committee worked hard to instruct the voters of the state that it was necessary for them to write the name of Mr. James on their ticket, and so successful were they that but few votes were cast for Mr. Eggleston and Mr. James ran only a few thousand votes behind the head of the ticket.

TRAGEDY OF FOOTBALL.

Washington Post.

Two picked young men, chosen from among many competitors for their superior mentality and excellent physique, one at Annapolis, and one at West Point, are lying; the one bruised, broken, and probably dying, the other dead, from injuries received in recent football games. Who can measure the grief to their families and friends to see such splendid young fellows, full of vigor and promise, the pride and joy of those who loved them, struck down in an instant, and their opening careers replete with hope to them and coming benefit and credit, to the country they had elected to serve, forever closed? And for what?

We are told the game develops manliness, courage, alertness, endurance, and physical strength and furnishes one of the best forms of outdoor exercise. There have never been lacking, long before football became the leading subject in the curricula of the time, plenty of men in the army and navy and in civil life possessing an abundance of all these qualities to carry them and the country through any emergency they have been called on to meet.

Admitting that football does to some extent foster mainly traits, it must not be forgotten that it also develops very brutal and unmanly ones, that even the most rigid rules and penalties have not been sufficient wholly to suppress slugging, unfairness, and a determination to win by foul means if necessary. That it has tended and does still tend to unduly magnify and exalt mere physical prowess, setting up a misleading and harmful standard among young men whose primary object should be proficiency in their studies, there can be no question that an adequate amount of physical training can be secured without football. None of the other games is subject to the objections which apply to it.

Every year numbers of young fellows are slaughtered and maimed "to make an American holiday." Is it worth it? If we must have such spectacles, why not turn to the bull-fight, which we are so ready to criticize, but which, as a rule kills only bulls? Is it not time that the government, at least, should say that young men it takes in charge to educate, and on whom it must rely in the future, shall not be subject to such risks? If for no higher or better reason these accidents involve an economic loss to the government, from which it should protect itself.

Our people are making preparations for the banquet of the Fruit Growers' Association in Strasburg, Nov. 13.

When you have a cold the first thing to do is have the bowels move. Do not take anything that may constipate and most old fashioned cough cures do constipate. Try Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It drives the cold from the system by a free yet gentle action of the bowels; it stops the cough, it is pleasant to take. Children like it. Sold by Walton & Snoot.

ST. LUKE.

The people of this community are very busy gathering their corn this week, and most all claim that the corn is better than they expected.

We are glad to learn that the school at this place is progressing nicely, and there are on the roll 102 pupils. We will learn more about the school after the reports come out.

Mr. Harry Funk is clerking at this place for Garber Bros. We are glad to see that their business is going to be a success.

Barbara Goehneour has a good Durham heifer for sale.

The pie social held at Pleasant Grove school house on last Friday night for the purpose of raising funds for procuring an organ for school use proved to be a very enjoyable affair to all that were present. Mr. Goehneour, the auctioneer, seemed well qualified for the work of selling pies (if not eating them). He kept everyone in the best of spirits by his pleasantry.

Mr. Kirby Smith manifested the biggest pie stult, he being the champion bidder, cast the highest bid at $1.75 for a single pie. The social was a success in every way, finances not excluded.

Prof. W. A. Garber, of Dayton, Va., is conducting evangelistic meetings at St. Luke this week. He is delivering earnest practical sermons on the Home, Social and Church Life.

Mr. Chas. C. Beidler, who is attending a Veterinary College at Washington, D. C., is at his home here this week, getting ready to take his family with him to the city. We regret very much to see them leave this community, but in their going we wish them the greatest of success.

Mr. Harry Riffe and wife spent Sunday with Mr. John W. Riffe.

Our wedding folks are getting their property set up again. Mr. Sager said, when the boys put the buggy in the hog pen, it looked somewhat hogish. We congratulate them and wish them much happiness.

The rough riders were in touch of this place, hollow eve. Most of the parties were late and among them were Messrs. Jos., Wm. and Oscar Goehneour, Nevin and Clarence Fravel, E. Baker and Oscar Wisman, they all report a prosperous time, good night.

Well as to the election the polls were up and the polls are down some one is up and some one beat out all around.

A Card.

I take this method of conveying to my friends over the county my sincere appreciation of their cordial support in the recent election. I recognize that the truest way of showing this appreciation is in the faithful discharge of the duties of the office to which I have been re-elected.

Very truly,

BRENDEN B. BOWMAN.

Newport News, Va., Nov. 3, '09.

Capt. J. H. Grabill,

Editor Shen. Herald,

Woodstock, Va.

My dear Captain:

I have just seen the returns from Woodstock and Shenandoah county, and hasten to express to the voters of my old home town and county my grateful appreciation of the compliment they paid me in yesterday's election. To have carried Woodstock, Shenandoah county, and the city of Newport News by substantial majorities is an honor of which I am deeply sensible.

Please publish this letter in your next issue, as I cannot let this opportunity for thanking my good friends pass without availing myself of it.

With kindest regards I remain, with great respect, yours very truly,

JNO. B. LOCKE

All report a pleasant time.

RELIANCE.

The people of this place are fast attending to the fall work.

Many of our folks saw the terrible automobile wreck at Middletown.

The meeting that is being held at Mt. Zion church is progressing well. The Rev. and Prof. Beal, of the college gave us one of the best and most biblical sermons Sunday morning that any one ever heard.

Rev. J. A. McInturf and Rev. Christianson and wives were at Winchester, upon returning McInturf was very nervous due to an excitement of the horses being frightened by an automobile causing near a terrible wreck.

The boys in celebrating Halloween carried a number of gates away and pulled some carriages for a mile or two.

The College has a first class faculty and all is going very nicely.
